Ray has a tough job to do in providing comments that don't come back to haunt CLA and be used against us. My suggestion would be provide Ray with comments that are not seen to be critical of the person but rather objectively focus on the person's work products and experience in the context of quality and relevancy.

We should move on this, but I'm not sure how best to do so. Suggestions??

Phil: we are mindful of the sensitivities and need to feed our objections in through effective channels.

This is important. We do not want to have Cory-Slechta on the SAP core panel. What action can be taken.
